

City's Fire Loss $33,957 Last Year Fire Chief Murphy Reports

Fire Department Responded to 352 Calls, 20 of Which Were False—
Fire Chief Issued 334 Building Permits with Total Estimated Cost of $346,006 Which Shows Increase Over 1934.

Kingston's fire department responded to 352 fire calls during 1935, of which number 20 were false alarms. The total fire loss in the city last year was $33,957.99. During the past year the fire chief issued 334 building permits in the city and the total approximate estimate of the cost of construction of $346,006, an increase of about $40,000. These facts are set forth in the annual report of Fire Chief Joseph L. Murphy submitted at the regular monthly meeting of the Board of Fire Commissioners held Tuesday evening at the Central Fire Station. The fire chief's report is of interest to every resident, and is given below.

In compliance with the Rules of the Fire Department, I have the honor of submitting for your approval the 27th annual report of the fire department, for the year ending December 31st, 1935.

The department both paid and volunteer performed their duties in a most efficient manner during the past year, responding to 352 fire calls, 13 calls answered outside of city limits, and 12 emergency calls, making a total of 377 calls answered.

The total fire loss for year 1935 was $33,957.99. Sixty-six (66) incidents of fire occurred in the city during the year to which the fire department was not called, causing a fire loss of $2,165.73 which is added to the total fire loss. These fires were caused by cigarettes, cigars, hot coals, electric irons, candles, fire crackers, electric lamp cords, sparks from match head, overheated stoves and furnaces, shorts in electric wiring, lightning, grease burning on stove, and oil burner smudge.

The fighting and extinguishment of fire alone no longer constitutes the duty of a fire department, in order to keep abreast of the times today it is an absolute necessity that the department be equipped and ready to meet any type of emergency. Great hazards from the industrial use and liquids, the nature of the material used in merchandise, and the numerous hazardous conditions which exist today bring the Fire Department and the Citizens of the community which it serves, face to face with a serious problem.

The citizens consider the Fire Department an emergency organization as well as a fire fighting unit, and a department that will render quick service, with the thought that the department is equipped with the necessary tools to meet the emergency. If the department is to render such service efficiently it is necessary that it be properly equipped. So when the vital emergency comes there will be no hesitation, but a clean job done, and whatever the outcome, we will know that the best that could be done has been accomplished.

An emergency equipment the department should carry includes cutting equipment by iron bars and beams, jacks for use in case of accident, block and tackle, stretchers and modern resuscitation and first aid equipment, oxygen type gas masks and a portable lighting unit.

The fact that Kingston has been fortunate the past few years in not having a serious fire is no assurance that it will continue to be a city which is immune from a serious fire. Should a fire occur in some of our industrial, mercantile or public buildings, under crowded conditions, there is no doubt in my mind that there would be serious injuries accompanied by loss of life.

As a measure of prevention the members of the Fire Department are making constant inspections, ordering the removal of all inflammable rubbish, seeing that all exits are unlocked and unobstructed.

All mercantile buildings should have a second and adequate means of exit for use in case of an emergency, and stores cleaned in the high inflammable risk, should be sprinklered. This to my mind is the only safe way to protect the patrons in case of a flash fire.

The Fire Department is the enforcing authority for the State, of the Industrial Building Code governing places of public assembly, which if found after inspection to comply with State requirements is granted a certificate. On this certificate which is hung in a conspicuous place in the lobby, will be found the number of persons allowed in theatre or dance hall. The occupancy of theatres is based on the number of floor seats plus one person for each three square feet of floor area where standing room is possible, such as aisles or passageways. In the case of an unsanitary assembly, one person to each six square feet, or one person to each ten square feet of floor area, depending upon the nature of the assembly. In all cases there must be adequate exits to accommodate those assembled and finally the occupancy is based on aggregate width of the exits.

When possible a fireman is detailed to theatre duty to see that the law, so far as maintenance is concerned, is being carried out, such as inspecting exits, exit lights, over capacity, projection booth, curtain, skylight and alikes.

I ask the public to cooperate with firemen and refrain from the wish to overcrowd and block exits, or to be displaced at the order that the house has reached its allowed capacity. The firemen are simply carrying out orders in enforcing the State Law for the safety and protection of the general public. "No place of Public Assembly can legally operate without having a Certificate of Compliance."

The advance in the use of oil burners in furnaces and ranges, and the oil storage necessary for the operation of the burners demonstrates the need of an ordinance regulating the installation of burners and storage of all fuel oils. I would recommend the present building code be amended and a section added thereto, requiring the filing for a permit and inspection of oil burner installation and oil storage, prohibiting the use of crank case oil which is one of the hazards in connection with oil burners. I would recommend the adoption of the oil burner ordinance recommended by the Oil Heating Institute, and range oil burners and storage adopted by Hartford, Connecticut.

The drill school was operated during the year with improved success. The drill tower is one of the greatest assets ever added to the fire department. Men are taught the proper operation of fire department equipment and are kept in better physical condition.

During Fire Prevention Week, all schools were visited by firemen, fire drills held, and a general inspection of school buildings was made.

I would be remiss in my duty if I failed to make mention of the loyal support and cooperation afforded me by Deputy Chief Leverich, Supt. Fire Alarm Miller, and members of the paid force. These men have performed their duties in a most efficient, unselfish and willing manner.

To the volunteer members of the fire department I extend my sincere appreciation for the valuable service they so willingly rendered during the year.

To the Honorable C. J. Helselman, Mayor, The Board of Fire Commissioners, and the various city departments, I extend my most hearty appreciation for their support and cooperation during the past year.

Respectfully submitted,
JOS. L. MURPHY,
Fire Chief

Bus Route Across The Rip Van Winkle

A bus route across the Rip Van Winkle bridge between Hudson in Columbia county and Catskill in Greene county has been authorized by the Public Service Commission. Permission has been granted Paul Hirschman to operate this line and also a route in Hudson and between Hudson and Greenpoint in Columbia county.

The bridge route will run on a two hour schedule between 8 a. m. and 3 p. m. leaving each terminal on the hour, except during the summer when a 20 minute schedule will be in effect. The route is about 6 miles long. At present the only means of getting between Columbia county seat and the Greene county seat is by ferry from Hudson to Athens and then by train between Catskill and Albany. This trip taken two or three hours and the ferry service is infrequent in winter. The Hudson terminal will be at the New York Central station and the Catskill terminal at the Greene county court house.

This new route will be of service to Kingston who desire to travel to Hudson, usually on during the winter season when the Kingston-Albany ferry is off the route due to ice.

Chamber of Commerce Asks Cut in Spending

Washington, Jan. 29 (AP)—Members of the United States Chamber of Commerce today called for a cut in government expenditures and a balanced budget without more taxes.

Member organizations were polled on 17 questions based on a committee report on federal finance. The general sentiment, as expressed by the poll, was that the expenditures of federal, state and local governments demand so much of the national income that they "discourage business, threaten the security of wages and savings, and retard employment."

A chamber proposal that relief expenditures be provided and controlled by the states with "reimbursable advances" from the federal government, was approved.

The New Deal Administration was not mentioned, but questions concerning relief, government competition with business and "social readjustment," were designed to call attention to the administration's activities.

The membership was reported to have voted 1,683 1/2 to 22 in favor of the discontinuance of federal expenditures for the purpose "of developing or extending governmental activities which compete with private business."

A similar vote recorded the members as believing it contrary to "sound" public policy to use the federal taxing power "primarily to compel states or individuals to conform to social or economic readjustments, with revenue only incidental."

Ferguson Issues Pension Challenge

Washington, Jan. 29 (AP)—Representative Ferguson (D.-Okla.) says no member of the House, including the author of a Townsend Plan bill, would vote for such old age pension legislation.

Ferguson yesterday challenged any member of the chamber to go on record as saying he would vote for the law.

He called for an investigation of the circumstances surrounding an article in the Townsend Weekly which listed 44 Representatives as supporting the $200-a-month pension proposal. Representative McGroarty (D.-Calif.) is the author of a Townsend Plan in Congress.

Representative Crawford (R.-Mich.), among those listed said he "did not even answer" the question, "did not want to him."

Representative Bollean (Prog.-Wis.), asserted another member, whom he did not name, replied merely that he favored adequate old age pensions.

"There is not a single member of this House of Representatives who would vote for the Townsend bill," Ferguson declared.

Neither McGroarty nor Representative Monaghan (D.-Mont.), chairman of the Townsend steering committee, was in the House at the time.

Aliens Face Trouble On Niagara's Shores

Niagara Falls, N. Y., Jan. 29 (AP)—Aliens who may attempt the cold and perilous crossing of the frozen lower Niagara river to gain illegal entry into the United States, faced a warm reception from U. S. patrolmen today.

The ice, which from the American to the Canadian side blankets the usually roaring torrent, has been branded unsafe but several thrill seekers nevertheless have blithely skipped over it.

Success of these "stunters" has served only to increase the alertness and the number of guards on patrol north of here.

The section in past years has been a favorite one for alien runners who balk at no risk.

The ice continued to grind and the river rise slightly, today, threatening the docks of the Canadian Steamship Company at Lewiston. Already some of the piling has been dislodged. Coast Guardsmen fear the structure will be demolished when the breakup comes.

The boathouse of Paul D. Schoellkopf, power official, has been around into wreckage but the expensive craft it housed were removed when danger loomed.

The river has climbed to 16 feet above normal and the ice is still being piled into huge mounds. No real menace to other shore property appears imminent.

350,000 Heart Deaths

Minneapolis, Jan. 29 (AP)—A Minneapolis insurance company's figures today earmarked 350,000 Americans for the death of heart disease in 1936. The company's statisticians, blaming the strain of modern life for the increased deadliness of heart ailments, predicted the toll would be even greater in 1937.

Famous Slayer Killed in Prison

Richard Loeb (right), one of the slayers of the youthful Bobby Franks in an attempted "perfect crime," died in the Illinois State Prison at Joliet after being badly slashed with a razor by a fellow convict. A short time later the two met in a lavatory, which was being remodeled to house a correspondence school which Leopold and Loeb were conducting for the prison inmates.

Day told McCabe that when Loeb entered the room he said, "You take off your clothes and I'll take off mine."

Both men undressed and Day charged that Loeb threatened him. Day said Loeb drew a razor, which was one of 40 used in the prison barber shop. It was the one reported missing at the daily inspection Monday night.

"Dismayed Loeb"

Day contended in his statement that he disarmed Loeb and shed in self defense. Loeb finally fled the room and staggered 60 feet down a corridor, where Gale Swolley, serving a life term as a member of the Handsome Jack Klutas gang which kidnapped James Hackett, Blue Island, Ill., gambler, helped him to the prison hospital.

Bowen pointed out that while both men were naked, the shower in the laboratory had not been used.

Warden Ragen said, "I don't think Leopold knows anything about the slaying as he was in a cell 100 feet away at the time."

ROAD BUILDING IN 1936.

Any Americans who think our roads are all built will probably have to revise their opinion. Twenty-five thousand representatives of this industry, assembling to look at the latest machinery—$3,000,000 worth of it newly designed—and discuss the latest construction methods, foresee the biggest year yet in road construction. They expect a "billion-dollar year." During the depression there have been 1,000,000 miles of new roadway built out of a possible 3,000,000. But the president of the Road Builders' Association maintains that there isn't yet a single completed road in the United States. Take any road you like, and you will find somewhere along the line that it needs widening or leveling, or has too sharp a curve, or a narrow bridge, or a dangerous highway intersection or railroad crossing. The farmers are mostly "still in the mud" and need roads to market. Arterial highways and by-passes are wanted, streamlining for clear vision, wider and stronger paving strips, great stretches of new highway in undeveloped areas, co-ordination of roads in a national system of trunk lines with "feeder" roads, and so on. The possibilities are limitless.

COILS AROUND THE DUCE.

League of Nations members, big and little, are plucking up courage again to choke the life out of Mussolini's African war. Great Britain and France have lined up the small powers of the eastern Mediterranean—Turkey, Greece and Yugoslavia—as active allies in case Mussolini attacks the British fleet. That fleet is, as it has been, policing the Mediterranean and Red Seas for itself and the League. The other members of the Little Entente, Roumania and Czechoslovakia, apparently will join the policing group. It makes an overwhelming display of force against Italy. Incidentally, along with Russia's defensive attitude on her western front, it tends to keep Germany quiet. The League of Nations, dominated by this minor league, may have the courage to add oil to its list of sanctions. If that were done, and enforcement were assured, the United States would be morally bound to acquiesce, stopping oil shipments to Italy from this country or from American interests anywhere. The coils are tightening around Mussolini.

MOVIE ICICLES.

Among the improvements in movie making in recent years one should list the evolution of the screen icicle. Formerly this stage property was made of fiber and wet plaster sprinkled with mica dust. Other, more realistic, types followed. Today, the chief of the icicle makers uses several layers of transparent paper, twisted and crumpled into icicle form and then dipped in wax. These are more realistic than their predecessors for, under the studio lights, the wax melts and drips, looking very like real icicles during a January thaw. Doubtless there is a way to prevent their dripping when the scenario calls for sub-freezing weather.

The interesting thing about the simulated icicles is the alimony they afford the inventors necessary to convey familiar sights and sounds to eyes and ears on the screen and over the radio, where few things are just what they seem.

CANADA, TOO.

Our neighbor Canada, too, is having her New Year overhauled by the Supreme Court. The justices were not so completely penetrated by the president as the States, perhaps because it is not so highly industrialized, but the same forces were at work and, to a surprising extent, similar measures were undertaken.

The Supreme Court at Ottawa is now considering the constitutionality of eight recovery and reform acts. They cover unemployment and social insurance, marketing of natural products, minimum wages, limitation of working hours and days of rest trade and industry control, farm debts and various related parts of the criminal code. It is another example of the striking parallels found in the life and institutions of these two countries.

BOMBED ANTS

This report from Addis Ababa may or may not be true, though it sounds quite possible. Italian airmen are said to be bombing huge ant hills in the belief that they are native villages. From the air these hills resemble greatly, in size, shape and color, the Ethiopian mud huts. A group of the ant hills looks like a village.

A neutral air observer, after making a survey of the holo sector of southern Ethiopia where there have been many air attacks, reports that thousands of dollars worth of bombs have been wasted in this unwitting war on ants. The Italian campaign in Ethiopia grows more fantastic and irrational, the more one learns about it.

ANGINA PECTORIS

The typical or usual attack of angina pectoris (breast pang) consists of the sudden onset of agonizing pain in the region of the heart or under the breast bone. There is a feeling that death is at hand. The pain may extend into left shoulder and arm. The patient is pale, motionless (afraid to move), and often bathed with cold perspiration. The pain comes on suddenly after exertion, excitement or a hearty meal. The heart feels as if it were in a vise. While some cases of angina pectoris show some change in the structure of the heart and blood vessels, there are many that do not. This cause is felt to be that the heart muscle is not getting enough "pure" blood for combustion (to do its work properly, or that there may be a partial closure of the blood vessels supplying the walls of the heart with blood.

However some physicians now believe that "anginal" attacks in many cases are due to other causes than the lack of pure blood in the heart muscles.

Dr. C. H. Beach, Richmond, Va., in the Journal of the American Medical Association, states that these attacks occur when the available energy is not equal to the demands made on the heart muscle. The individual may be too low in energy for a number of reasons.

1. Reduced flow of blood to the heart muscle due to various causes.
 2. A lack of oxygen in the blood as in anemia (thin blood).
 3. A lack of certain necessary foodstuffs in the blood.
 4. An abnormally slow rate of manufacturing energy from the food. This is seen in cases where there is a lack of thyroid juice, slow, fat, sluggish condition of the body.

The thought then is that in treating a patient with anginal symptoms, simply advising the individual to rest more and eat less is not sufficient; that a thorough examination should be made including the rate of blood circulation, the lack of sugar carrying power of the blood, the possibility of lack of iron in the blood, and the rate at which the body processes work (metabolic test) should all be considered.

Thus, Dr. Beach puts it, "each patient presenting anginal symptoms should be scrutinized with the utmost care."

THE BOOMERANG CLUE

Chapter 12
 DEDUCTION

"ACCORDING to our present theory it goes like this," Bobby continued. "Dead man X is deliberately pushed over cliff—presumably by H. E. (pardon the initials). It is important that X should not be correctly identified, so the portrait of Mrs. C. is put in his pocket and the portrait of Fair Unknown removed. Who was she, I wonder?"

"Keep to the point," said Frankie sternly. "Mrs. C. waits for photograph to appear. Then turns up as grief-stricken sister and identifies X as her brother from foreign parts."

"You don't believe he could really have been her brother?"

"Not for a moment! You know, it puzzles me all along. The Caymans were a different class altogether. The dead man was—well, it sounds a most awful thing to say and just like some deadly old retired Anglo-Indian—but the dead man was a pukka sahib."

"And the Caymans emphatically weren't!"

"Most emphatically." "And then, just when everything has gone off well from the Caymans' point of view—body successfully identified, verdict of accidental death, everything in the garden lovely—you come along and mess things up," mused Frankie.

"Why didn't they ask Evans?" Bobby repeated the phrase thoughtfully. "You know I can't see what on earth there can be in that to put the wind up anybody."

"Ah! that's because you don't know. It's like making crossword puzzles. You write down a clue and you think it's too idiotically simple and that everyone will guess it straight off, and you're frightfully surprised when they simply can't get it in the least. Why didn't they ask Evans? Evans must have been a most frightfully significant phrase to them, and they couldn't realize that it meant nothing at all to you."

"More fools they," Bobby said. "Oh, quite so. But it's just possible they thought that if Pritchard said that he might have said something more which would also refer to you in due time. Anyway they weren't going to take chances. You were safer out of the way."

"They took a lot of risk. Why didn't they engineer another 'accident'?"

"No, no. That would have been stupid. Two accidents within a week of each other? It might have suggested a connection between the two, and then people would have begun inquiring into the first one. No, I think there's a kind of bad simplicity about their method which is really rather clever."

"And yet you said just now that the morphia wasn't easy to get hold of."

"No more it is. You have to sign poison books and things. Oh—of course, that's a clue! Whoever did it had easy access to supplies of morphia."

"A doctor, a hospital nurse, or a chemist," suggested Bobby.

"Well, I was thinking more of illicitly imported drugs."

"You can't mix up too many different sorts of crime," said Bobby.

"You see, the strong point would be the absence of motive. Your death doesn't benefit anyone. So what will the police think?"

"A lunatic," said Bobby. "And that's what they do think."

"You see? It's awfully simple really."

BOBBY began to laugh suddenly.

"What's amusing you?"

"Just the thought of how sick-making it must be for them! All that morphia—enough to kill five or six people—and here I am alive and kicking."

"One of Life's little ironies that one can't foresee," agreed Frankie.

"The question is, what do we do next?" said Bobby practically.

"Oh! lots of things," said Frankie promptly.

"Such as—"

"Well—sitting out about the photograph—that there was only one, not two. And about Bannington French's house-burning."

"That will probably be quite all right and above-board."

"Why do you say that?"

"Look here, Frankie, think a minute. Bannington French must be

The World of STAMPS

By QUINTON JAMES.

Commemorative stamps from Germany, Finland and Latvia are prime in philatelic news this week.

The German

issue consists of a single stamp, a 40-pennig blue, to celebrate the tenth anniversary of the German air service, or Luftwaffe.

It bears a low-winged speed plane drawn against a background of white clouds. The inscription below reads: "Ten years of the German air service 1926-1936."

Finland's offering is its annual three-item set of Red Cross stamps, which have been appearing since 1930. The adhesives are bi-colored, the Red Cross symbol being printed in red within a large white circle in the lower right corner of each stamp.

The stamps pay tribute to three of Finland's pioneer notables, with Robert Henrik Rehbinder on the 14-marka plus 15-pennat, Gustav Mauritz Armfelt on the 2-mark plus 20-pennat, and Count Arvid Bernhard Horn on the 24-mark plus 25-pennat blue. While these men are classified historically as Swedish statesmen, each was born in Finland.

Four men of Latvia are illustrated on as many stamps in the set from that country. They include: A. Kronvalds on the 3-santim bright orange; A. Pumpurs on the 10-green; Aukelis on the 35-blue and J. Maters on the 20-blue.

Collector King.

George V., whose portrait has appeared on the stamps of Great Britain since 1911 and was included in the design of last year's silver jubilee issue, was even more closely associated with philately. He was one of the world's noted collectors, and his group often has been referred to as the most complete layout of unused and used stamps of Great Britain, including the colonies and dominions. It was said that the only item missing from his list was the famous British Guiana one-cent, now the property of the widow of Arthur Hind, noted American collector.

The late king began his collection when he was a lad. He built it up to the point where it contained numerous rarities, quite a number of which are regarded as the only ones existing. While he was Duke of York, he obtained many stamps first-hand on his visits to various divisions of the empire.

Coupled with his collecting was the wide knowledge he gained in philately. His collection includes essays, proofs and perforation trials that are regarded as outstanding.

It was said of the king that he never accepted a stamp as a gift, always preferring to purchase outright the items going into his collection.

The new king, Edward VIII, also has been a collector, but has never been as enthusiastic about the subject as his father.

Meanwhile, with a new British king, stamp experts look for the appearance within a reasonable period of a new set bearing Edward's portrait in keeping with the rule of placing the reigning monarch's picture on the current stamps.

As crown prince, Edward's portrait never appeared on the stamps of his mother country. Canada pictured him on the imperial conference issue of 1932.

Texas Stamp.

The design for the 3-cent U. S. stamp to celebrate the centennial of Texas has been approved. When it appears in March, it will be the first new item for Uncle Sam's 1936 list. It will be purple, the same shade as the special delivery, and will bear the portraits of Gen. Sam Houston and Stephen Fuller Austin.

A Washington Daybook

By HERBERT PLUMMER

WASHINGTON — The career of Senator Nye of North Dakota as a senate investigator probably has caused him more headaches than all of his other senate duties combined.

The treatment he has received at the hands of indignant Democratic colleagues for the way he has conducted the munitions investigation has set something of a record in the way of senatorial abuse.

As a rule senators adhere rather closely to that old custom of "senatorial courtesy" when they start out after each other in debate. Harsh things are said about each other in rough and tumble debate, but more often than not a senator will send for a transcript of his remarks later and tone down his personal observations toward a colleague.

The result is that the Congressional Record frequently reveals an almost knock-down-drag-out affair on the floor as a rather mild difference of opinion.

Expense Accounts

NYE himself has called attention to the fact that "most eloquent language has been resorted to here in the senate in the portrayal of one senator's respect for another."

The North Dakota senator still remembers with a great deal of resentment the treatment he received in the senate several years ago when he headed a special committee investigating campaign expenditures. The charge was made then, as in the present instance, that Nye's expense account was out of proportion to the work his committee was doing.

George Moses of New Hampshire succeeded in unearthing somewhere a complete and itemized copy of the money spent by Nye's committee—even to tips and taxi fares. One day when Nye was absent from the chamber, Moses—an Old Guard Republican and collier of the phrase "sons of the wild jackass"—in describing the progressive Republican bloc in the senate—spread the "hit and kaboodle" of the expense account in the Congressional Record.

Nye exploded. Nothing like that had ever been done by one senator to another before and Nye has neither forgiven nor forgotten.

Bounds Overstepped

SENATOR CONNALLY opened old wounds for Nye when he suggested that the senate and the "Bureau of Internal Revenue" would like to know how much he was receiving in profits from the speeches and lectures he had been making on the work of the munitions committee in various sections of the country.

Nye lashed back that while he considered his private income his own business, if Connally himself would inform the senate and the country of how much he made, he (Nye) would do the same.

Rarely have senators overstepped the bounds of "senatorial courtesy" as they did in this instance. And it was the type of interchange had cooled off, either, as so often happens.

YOUR INCOME TAX

WHEN TO REPORT INCOME FROM SALARIES, WAGES, ETC.

Of the millions of income-tax returns that are filed annually, the vast majority are from salaried persons and wage earners whose income is derived from personal services.

In general, compensation for personal services should be reported for taxation purposes in the year it is received or unqualifiedly made subject to demand. Compensation credited to the account of or set apart for a taxpayer, without any substantial limitation or restriction, and which may be drawn upon by him at any time, is subject to tax for the year during which so credited or set apart, although not actually reduced to possession.

If the services were rendered during the year 1935, or even prior thereto, but the compensation was not received, or made unqualifiedly subject to demand, by the taxpayer until the year 1936, the entire amount is taxable in the year received, or made unqualifiedly subject to demand.

When the taxpayer is reporting on the cash receipts and disbursements basis, which is the basis used by most persons in reporting net income.

The names of all employees to whom payments of $1,000 or over a year are made must be reported. The information return should be made on form 1099, accompanied by the number of returns filed. These returns should be filed on or before February 15, 1936.

All of the various types of compensation, unless specifically exempt by statute or exempt by fundamental law, should be included in the taxpayer's return of gross income, such as salaries, wages, fees, commissions, bonuses, tips, honorariums, prizes, awards, retiring allowances for past services, etc. Where services are paid for in whole or in part with something other than money, the fair market value of the thing taken in payment must be included as income. Other items subject to tax are fees received by ministers of the gospel for funerals, baptisms, marriages, and like services; executors' fees; directors' fees; Federal jury fees; and prizes received in contests of various kinds.

The salaries of Federal officers and employees are subject to tax, including the salary of the President of the United States and judges of courts of the United States taking office after the date of the enactment of the Revenue Act of 1932, which was June 3, 1932. The salary of the Vice-President of the United States and the salaries of members of the House of Representatives and the Members of the United States Senate are also subject to income tax.

TALKS TO PARENTS

Ban On 'Lie' Helps

By BROOKE PETERS CHURCH

The Brown family was never permitted to use the word "lie" in daily speech. Parents and children alike used circumlocutions such as, "That is not the way it happened," or, "I think you are mistaken." It seemed clumsy to go so far out of one's way when there was a short little word which covered the case completely and said exactly what the speaker meant.

But the Brown family, oddly enough, was always a truthful family, and possibly one of the reasons for this was their very avoidance of the word "lie."

It is not easy to find an indirect way of accusing a person of untruthfulness, and one has to stop and think of what one is saying. As a result the accusation is frequently not made. There is a great deal, too, in the power of suggestion. When lies and the possibility of lies are in the foreground of one's mind, and when people accuse each other of deliberate untruth, the accusation is very apt to become justified. After all, if one is to be called a liar anyway, one might as well have the convenience of being one.

There is nothing more unpleasant than the family where the epithet "liar" or the phrases, "You lie," and "That's a lie" are bandied about in everyday speech. The word would once have been the cause of a duel or even a shooting, and might still cause violent quarrels among grown men. But no one remembers this in addressing children, or trains the children to the serious implication of the word.

A parent will say quite thoughtlessly, "That is a lie, Tommy," and will listen calmly to children calling each other "liars." If the word could be barred from household use, and given the force which it deserves, the effect on the honesty of the family might be miraculous.

Sundown Stories

Cry Baby

By MARY GRAM BOWNER

YOU did mean to hit me in the eye," repeated Sweet Face, as he drew up one little foot, and tried to see if his eye was still in its proper place.

"It may have been a harder smudge than some of the others," barked Rip. "But I didn't try to hit you in the eye. Besides, Top Nod hit me hard the last time and I didn't cry and moan about it."

At which all the Puddle Noddies started shouting.

"Cry baby, cry baby! Sweet Face is a cry baby!"

"I'm not a cry baby!" cried Sweet Face, and both his feelings and his eye hurt quite a little.

"Then be a good sport," said Willy Noddy. "I saw Rip. He didn't mean to hit you either than fairly. We're all playing a game. I'm ashamed of you, Sweet Face."

Sweet Face put his head down from his eye and began playing again. But he noticed as hard a smudge on his nose and cheek that he hit Rip very hard, but Rip did not whine. And then it was Sweet Face's turn to be ashamed of himself. Rip had certainly been a good sport.

And now Sweet Face played as the others did.

Toward that they went inland, but as Sweet Face went to sleep that night he said to himself:

"I have been a good sport at home. Why will you not let me be a good sport here? I'm not going to be so foolish and frightened any more."

So as he made this fine resolution, he found a new hard smudge on his forehead, and another.

Large Attendance Is Expected at President's Party

Residents of Ulster county, who have attended President Roosevelt's birthday party at Golden Rule Inn for the past two years, and a number for whom it will be their first experience at the chief executive's social doing, are expected to gather at the Ulster Park resort Thursday night for this year's celebration.

Tickets for the party at Golden Rule Inn have been selling rapidly and the number of reservations made up until today indicate that there will be a nice sum realized as Ulster county's share toward the fight against infantile paralysis is deeply interested. Col. Henry L. Doherty, national chairman of the Roosevelt parties reports that more than $5,000 will be held, and his anticipation is that more than a million dollars will be raised. Thirty per cent of each party proceeds will go to the Warm Springs Foundation for infantile patients and 70 per cent is to remain in the community where the party is held.

The committee in charge of arrangements promise that Thursday's party at Golden Rule Inn will surpass any held so far, and that the entertainment with Peggy Hanlon returning as mistress of ceremonies will be more elaborate than ever. Miss Hanlon is returning by popular request. The dinner will be served at 10:30. Those who have not obtained tickets can get them from any member of the committee.

SPHAS vs. MORGENWECKERS TONIGHT RECORD CROWD EXPECTED AT GAME

A set of champions and another aggregation of likely looking prospects for such honors clash tonight at the Municipal Auditorium.

The Philadelphia Hebrews, winners of the first half of the American League schedule, and Frank Morgenweck's Citrus Service basketball team, leaders of the second half to date, will go to war on the court at 8:45, and indications are that there will be lots of action from the starting to the final whistle.

So far the Morgenweckers dropped only one game in the second half, that to the Jersey Reds on their home court. After bowing to the Reds, the Gasoliers took them on and trimmed them 27-29 at the Auditorium. Besides trimming the Jersey Reds, the Kingstons took over the New York Jewels. Last Sunday the Jewels knocked off the SPHAS, 28-25. Allie Schuckman being credited for the victory. He put on a drive for the winning points in the last 20 seconds of play.

Captain Carl Huxa, who romped about the local court, to score 19 points against the Reds last week, says his men are ready for the Hebrews tonight. "We hope to take the Phillips over and will put forth every effort to bag this one for Pop Morgenweck and the Kingston fans."

Standing lineup probably will be: Kingstons—Lefty Kintzing and Horae Meyers, forwards; Tiny Horn, center; Frank Shimek and Carl Huxa, guards; Corky Stanton and George Glasco, utility; Philadelphia—Kaselman and Fitch, forwards; Goldman, center; Gothoff and Rosen, guards; Lautman and Wolfe, utility.

There will be a preliminary at 7:45 featuring the Kondalls against another formidable club.

Expectations are that there will be a banner crowd for tonight's games.

One-Sided Scores In White Eagle Hall Games Tuesday Night

In all there were three games of basketball at White Eagle hall Tuesday night and scores indicate that the chief interest in the games was estimating just how big a margin of victory the winners would have.

The closest contest was in the preliminary between the Cornell Recreates and the Pirates, which was hard fought all the way through. Deppy Martin's cakers took the first half 10 to 9, which wasn't so bad, but the losers were outscored 11 to 5 in the second half. Wenzel and Zeeh, who made 14 points between them, leading the attack in the last quarter. Coughlin was high man for the Pirates, with four fields and a foul.

In the other preliminary, between two girls' teams, the Kingston A. A. Girls proved to be too much for the Daisy Girls, winning 14 to 2.

In the main event the Cordis Hose team made enough points to win an ordinary game, but the trouble was the Home Leaders made so many more, the final score being 61 to 31. The Home Leaders were ahead at half time 31 to 18. Rhymor, Van Etten and Niles scored a total of 42 points, being credited with 14, 17 and 15 respectively. For the losers Carpio put up a good game, being credited with six fields and two fouls, for a total of 11 points.

Team Standings and Individual Scores In the Church League

A tabulation of the individual standings and of the scoring records and points in opposition by the various teams composing the Church Basketball League, has been compiled.

The table shows that Bill Thomas of the Presbyterians leads the individual scores by a good margin, with Gaddie, a team mate, second. Both played in six games. Pete Schline of the Redemptors, who played in four games, is third on the list. Al Short of the Port Ewen team and H. Smith of the Presbyterians, tie for fourth place.

The Presbyterians lead in total number of goals scored and total number of points scored. The Port Ewen team, which tied for first place in the first half, but defeated the Presbyterians in the playoff, had the fewest number of points scored against them.

Two Grand Circuit Meets at Goshen Track

Cleveland, O., Jan. 27. Nineteen weeks of trotting in 13 cities, scattered from coast to coast, will comprise the 1936 Grand Circuit schedule for top-flight harness horses.

Last year there were but 10 weeks in nine cities of the Grand Circuit. "Such a line-up speaks for itself as an indication of how rapidly the trotting sport is progressing," E. Roland Harriman, of New York, president of the Grand Circuit, declared at the close of the annual meeting over which he presided.

The Circuit will be launched at June 29, and will continue until the first of November.

The Historic Track at Goshen, N. Y., owned by Mr. Harriman, joins the Grand Circuit by giving a meeting, July 26-28. The usual August card will be held, as always, at William H. Cane's Good Time Park, where the $40,000 Hambletonian stake will be trotted August 12.

This means that Goshen, historic home of the harness horse, will host two big line meets this year.

All officers of the Grand Circuit were re-elected, as follows: Mr. Harriman, president; Allan J. Wilson, Boston, first vice president; Henry H. Knight, Chicago, second vice president; Will Gahagan, Goshen, secretary and treasurer.

It is highly probable that the affairs of state will cut sharply into the leisure time of Edward VIII, of Great Britain, with the inevitable result that his game of golf will suffer. The new monarch had developed his game to a mighty high degree. He was touring the English courses regularly in 80 and at times a stroke or two better. Now that's a mighty fair golf for any man who plays the game just for fun and exercise.

The demands on his time are likely, too, to cut in on the pleasant hours spent enjoying the races, boxing matches, tennis and other sports. In his role of prince, he was just about the staunchest supporter of sports the British athletes have had. The pressure of official duties may curtail his active support but it is not very likely that the popular monarch will divorce himself of all interest in sports. He was too vitally interested to do that.

Just as King Edward VIII is the leading golfer in the ranks of royalty, so is King Gustav of Sweden the leading royal exponent of tennis. The 77-year-old Swedish ruler plays a fine game of tennis, as many younger members of the Royal Tennis Club will vouch. Using the name of "Mr. G" to avoid unnecessary abashment, he competes in the team matches with other clubs.

It is quite natural to expect that King Haakon of Norway should have a warm spot in his heart for winter sports. He is a familiar figure on the scenes of winter sports competition as he moves about skillfully on his skis. Tall and powerful he might well have been a ski champion in his youth.

The Emperor of Manchukuo, Kang Teh, is a clever tennis player. The former boy emperor of China had tennis courts built near the castle, when he ascended the throne in Manchukuo, to keep fit for the duties of state.

The late King George V of England was an enthusiastic yachtsman. His stately yacht, Britannia, often sailed in regattas with the king either sailing the craft or joining in with the crew and taking orders from the captain. He was a patron of British racing and was no stranger at Wimbledon when the tennis matches were in progress.

Members of the diplomatic corps take their places, according to rank, along the edge of the canal where the game awaits them. Each diplomat is equipped with a net attached to a long pole. When the ducks are stirred into flight they are fair game to be captured with the nets. Each guest is allowed to catch a limited number, the quota being set again according to rank. As the guests depart for home each receives a neat package containing the ducks he has bagged.

Fireworks Measure
Before the Assembly

Albany, N. Y., Jan. 29 (AP)—Assemblyman Matthew J. McLaughlin, Bronx Democrat, proposes that fireworks be kept out of the hands of all persons under the age of 21.
The measure, introduced in the New York state legislature, would make it a misdemeanor to sell fireworks to a person under 21 or for such persons to have fireworks in their possession.
Other bills would Relieve police and firemen from liability in damage suits resulting from accidents occurring while proceeding to or returning from the scene of an accident, crime or fire.
The municipalities would be made liable instead.
Authorize education boards to maintain free kindergartens to which may be admitted resident children between the ages of four to six years.
Increase from five to ten the number of scholarships to be awarded annually for each assembly district and increase the amount of the scholarship from $100 to $200.
Provide for the display of the "union label" on state printing.
Provide that suits for libel be filed within one year, instead of two years after publication of the alleged libel.
Permit employers on state highway contracts to pay by check.
That labor employed on state public works projects be given the right of action against contractors bonds for unpaid wages.
That salary cuts of public employes made on account of a financial emergency shall not be considered a reduction for retirement purposes.
Drastic reduction of jury exemptions, leaving but six groups automatically exempt from the jury list, lawyers, doctors, clergymen, ship's officers, and those in military or public safety service.

CAPITAL NEWS
HOLLISTER TUNGER, JR.

The Crime Bills

Albany, Jan. 29.—It was a healthy thing to let bar associations, groups of district attorneys, business organizations, criminologists, police officers and others be heard on how they felt toward the 80-odd pieces of legislation pending before the current session.
Beginning at 2 o'clock and lasting until a late hour, the Senate and Assembly committees on judiciary and codes heard the speakers with patience. The Communist party was represented, too.
There was a good deal of praise for some measures, there was a good deal of damning for others. Some wanted more laws; others decided that not new laws but the execution of existing ones was sufficient.
J. Edward Conway, Republican from Ulster, serving his first year on the judiciary committee, sat patiently all during the procedure.
Several speakers tried to sum up the whole crime question in a nutshell. However, the nutshells were cracked repeatedly during the developments.

Preparing Props for Budget Abbot Low Moffat, youthful chairman of the ways and means committee in the Assembly, is getting his stage ready for the main performance of the session. Mr. Moffat, who hails from New York city, is the compromise candidate for this chairmanship after the dispute between party leaders at the opening of the session.

Mr. Moffat is taking his duties very seriously. He realizes that he is the key man on this job right now as the initial hearing on the state budget comes off February 4.
As a result he is spending every minute of his time studying the two massive volumes that contain the message and its figures. He will be prepared to answer questions pertinent to the budget. Saturdays and Sundays he remains in the capitol to exhaust the figures. He will preside at the hearing, which is in itself a real tough job. It is not a question of saying, "next," but of answering and asking vital questions.
Upon his rest the Republican hopes of exposing unnecessary expenditures that the state is planning to make during the coming fiscal year. If these expenditures can be pared down a few million dollars it will mean slashing off some of the gas tax money that the governor recommends to be continued. If not, then the G. O. P. looks farther afield in the hope of establishing some new tax in its stead, to hurt fewer but wealthier persons and let the motorist, who is universal as far as New York state is concerned, off with less burden than he now carries.

Lobbies

"Something between a hindrance and a help" is the description of a man by the late William Shakespeare of England.
Lobbyists are like that, sometimes,
too. When a legislator is in doubt about a certain measure there is sure to come to his rescue a lobbyist to urge him to use his vote for or against the bill in question. Quite often these are fair and helpful persons, urging legislation for the persons and business that they represent.
The state government, like that at Washington, recognizes the need for lobbyists and there is a limited number of authorized persons who are at the capitol each week to advise the law makers on specific measures.
The most powerful is that of the American Federation of Labor. Woe betide the representative who goes against the endorsement of this group. It has been done many times, but if it happens too much a little pressure is brought to bear in a mysterious manner.
There are other lobbies—for utilities, firemen, policemen, schoolteachers, butchers, iron workers, motor buses, trains, real estate, and countless others.
Once in a while, to the greenhorn on Capitol Hill especially, does a lobbyist try to get some legislation through by deceitful, subtle and tactful means. This is pretty dangerous procedure, but it has happened and in all probability will again.

Success of the choice lobby in the United States is answered by the recent bonus passage in the nation's capitol. It took 16 years, but it worked.

SKYSCRAPER SCENE OF MANHUNT

In one of the city's strangest manhunts, 100 New York police swarmed through the 60-story Woolworth building (right) for hours in an effort to catch a prowler who seriously shot Toni Petroni (top left), a watchman, then apparently hid in the great structure. But their efforts were fruitless. A detail of the police are shown as they stood guard in the lobby. Petroni is pictured as he was rushed to a hospital. (Associated Press Photos)

BROTHERHOOD DAY HAILS
CIVIL, RELIGIOUS LIBERTY

New York (AP)—The preservation and strengthening of the American tradition of civil and religious liberty will be the keynote of the third annual observance of Brotherhood day February 22 and 23. It is sponsored by the National Conference of Jews and Christians.
The contributions of colonial and revolutionary leaders to this tradition is being emphasized in this national observance in which more than a thousand communities across the country are expected to participate. The aim is to promote understanding and cooperation among Protestants, Catholics and Jews as American citizens.

There are more than 81 towns in Georgia with names ending in "ville."

Congressmen Join
In Dairy Movement

Washington, Jan. 29 (AP)—Congressmen from leading dairy states have joined in a movement designed to improve the lot of the dairymen, protesting that the government's agricultural policies have resulted in but little gain for the "milk farmer."
They considered a resolution calling upon Congress to unite upon a dairy protective program and to enact necessary legislation to carry it out.
Already work has been started on another front toward the consummation of a seven-states pact involving New England and Middle Atlantic States aimed at ending price chiseling on the Metropolitan New York market. Federal assistance is sought to an interstate agreement controlling the price of milk in interstate shipment.
The resolution called for a program embodying the following principles:
A safeguard in future farm legislation against use for dairy pasturing of lands withdrawn from production.
Prohibitions in the reciprocal trade agreement act against further reductions in dairy import duties.
Continuation of the government's program of buying dairy products for relief distribution.
Continuation of excise taxes on foreign fats and oils.
Legislation to prohibit importation of dairy products not produced from tuberculosis tested herds.
Enactment of an additional tax of five cents a pound on butter substitutes.
Members of the committee include: Reed, (R-N. Y.) and Calkin, (R-N. Y.).
The committee claimed that farm benefits under the AAA had not accrued to the dairymen

SENATE APPROVAL OF WHITE
EXPECTED TO SUCCEED EGBERT

Albany, N. Y., Jan. 29 (AP)—The New York Senate is expected to confirm today the nomination of William R. White, 32, of New York city, as state superintendent of banks.
Yesterday the Senate finance committee voted favorably on the nomination after delaying action for nearly three weeks because, it is said, of opposition to the appointee among several committee members.

White will succeed the late George W. Egbert, who died several months ago. The favorable report on the nomination followed a personal appearance by White before the finance committee.

Another interesting addition to the present unsettlement would be a radio debate between Alice and Eleanor.
